

The discerning charity or pension scheme needs to ensure that its interests are being protected through the application of diligent trusteeship.

Now it's possible to achieve this through appropriately skilled volunteers, the best of whom are willing and able to bring their business skills to bear on performing their duties as a board member and trustee.

This includes:-

- Forming and implementing good governance
- Ensuring the collection, investment and disbursement of funds is in accordance with the interests of the beneficiaries
- Contributing to a wide span of subjects in trustee board meetings
- Becoming familiar with legislation changes through training and research
- Working with other trustees as a team

- Planning and monitoring progress in the development of the organisation in meeting its aims
- Supporting the executive members of the organisation
- Setting strategy
- Reviewing progress
- Succession Planning
- Training
- Reviewing and applying appropriate an appropriate trust deed and rules
- Applying common sense to resolving the issues of the moment
- Forming working groups to bring forward recommendations to the main board
